Our persistence in improvising with feedback from past EcoVadis audits revalidates that ESG is core to the overall steering of the business. For us, ESG is not a compliance exercise but a strategic lens through which we engage with stakeholders, manage risk and build resilient, future-ready businesses that contribute positively to the wider ecosystem. We remain committed to integrity and creating long-term value for stakeholders, the communities we engage with, and the environment."

The recognition comes at a time when companies across the sector are strengthening ESG and governance frameworks to meet rising expectations from regulators, rating agencies and financial institutions thereby driving greater transparency, reduced environmental impact across supply chains, improved carbon and ecological footprints.
